“We are what we repeatedly do: excellence then is not an act, but a habit.”
-Aristotle

“... And those of us who manage the public’s dollars will be held to account - to spend wisely, reform bad habits, and do our business in the light of day - because only then can we restore the vital trust between a people and their government.”

- Barack Obama

VALOR IN PROSPERITY

Part III in the Blind Vision Series

By Curtis Greco

Founder of

THE IMPERFECT MESSENGER FOUNDATION

In VALOR IN PROSPERITY (July 2010/ Advantage Media Group) we are introduced to the idea that there is supreme valor in man’s application of effort while in the pursuit of prosperity. This book is a critical extension of the fundamentals presented in WE HOLD THESE TRUTHS (February 2010) Part I and VALUE GIVEN, VALUE RECEIVED (April 2010) Part II in The Blind Vision Series.

The Blind Vision Series is a strategic response to the growing discord between the Government and the American people. The series deliberately addresses this disconnect from a historical perspective, (rather than from a political or partisan assault) rooted in the teachings and ideologies of the nation’s forefathers.

VALOR IN PROSPERITY addresses the nebulous “selective indifference” that has settled over the people and governing body of this nation regarding the founding ideals as they relate specifically to the topics of personal prosperity in a “free market” economy. Greco poignantly argues that society’s “expressions of excess” (political corruption, violence, pornography, child abuse, etc...) are not compatible with the founding fathers notions of freedom and liberty. Furthermore, individual and collective indulgences and impulses in that vein, though one might consider these an extension of freedom, actually degrade the cause of liberty. He writes that effective change must start with the individual and at the local and state levels of government. He warns that elected officials must become accountable to the people whom they represent.

Greco makes the case that in order for the original American ideal of self-governance (true republicanism) to flourish, individuals and the government should return to the words and values laid forth in the Constitution, which spells out an acceptable and agreeable code of conduct for government. Specifically, an individual's right to own and sell property, to create a system where there is a healthy exchange of goods and services in the spirit of one's freedom to pursue prosperity. The government has, however, systematically imposed programs and legalities designed perhaps to enhance prosperity, but in practice, actually impede it. He cites specific programs such as the New Deal, The National Labor Relations Act, Roe v. Wade, and most recently The Patriot Act as examples of potentially good intentions and ideas that have been manipulated and twisted into harmful and preventative measures.

VALOR IN PROSPERITY proposes a FUNCTIONAL stimulus as a remedy to the nation's ills. Greco suggests reconstitution, a total overhaul of the electoral process, as well as the monetary, legislative, judicial and military systems. This third installment of the Blind Vision Series is ultimately hopeful and inspiring by posing some fascinating changes that would "fix" this government, and by extension, this country. Greco's deep love for this nation and its founding ideals is evidenced throughout the series. Don't miss this thought provoking commentary and call to action.
